How to apply our brand
Guck mal, ich kann das schon selba!

We care ...

The child's own discovery is the moment we want to make possible while respecting the need of parents for realistic and simple solutions suiting their day-to-day family life.

… for a future …

To give children more opportunities to experience their own capability, with support from the adults around them.

… full of confident people.

A generation of confident people who are empowered and curious to explore, try, and learn.

Empowerment? A child has room to choose, attempt, discover, and ask for help. Adults provide support appropriate to the child and situation. Independence must not become pressure to manage alone, reach a milestone early, or perform for an adult.

What we fight for

Simple Creativity

Find an inventive solution with a clear purpose, while removing unnecessary steps, features, and explanation.

Patience

Give children time to try again. Give product development time for learning and refinement.

Problems

Identify the situation, fall in love with the problem and understand the need before proposing a feature.

Impact

We're taking our customer's potential and our potential serious and thrive for achieving our vision.

Growth

We constantly have room for curiosity, verifying approaches to scale and adapt our solutions for families out there.

for kids

Emil

3 years

My perfect day

A big truck stops outside our house. I watch it. We don’t have to go anywhere. Then another truck comes.

My first law if I ran the world tomorrow

All buttons have to be down here. Grown-ups can bend down.

My superpower

Bear strength. I carried all the potatoes. Mum carried them after the tree.

for kids

Lea

4 years

My perfect day

I wear my glitter dress and open my animal café. Finn is a cat.
He has to order by meowing.

My first law if I ran the world tomorrow

You're allowed to wear a costume everywhere. Even to work.
Even if you're the doctor.

My superpower

Elsa can make a castle. I can make a whole café out of two cushions.

for kids

Mila

5 years

My perfect day

A whole afternoon at the river. I make a leaf boat and see how many stones it can carry. So far, no stones.

My first law if I ran the world tomorrow

Every town has to leave a wild bit for little animals.

My superpower

I can spot tiny creatures. Dad thinks I'm pointing at dirt.
The dirt has legs, Dad.

for kids

Sami

5 years

My perfect day

My friend comes over and we rescue everyone from the fire. Then my favourite story. With all the pages, even the ones Mum thinks I won't notice.

My first law if I ran the world tomorrow

Every bus and train has to have a slide for getting off.

My superpower

I can transform any toy car to a real car.

for kids

Nora

6 years

My perfect day

Pancakes, rollerskating, and my friend staying until we finish our secret map. We keep adding bits so she can stay longer.

My first law if I ran the world tomorrow

Children get to decide on playgrounds. Grown-ups keep putting benches where the zip line should go.

My superpower

Finding the way, like Moana. I remember the tree, the wall and the funny-shaped bin.

and their parents

Aylin

32 years

I would like to try this

That dance move I currently perform as “looking for a contact lens.”

My guilty pleasure

Putting my new jacket back on when I get home. Just to check. Yes, still excellent.

My superpower

Jedi persuasion. I can get someone who says “That’s not possible” to tell me who can actually do it.

and their parents

Daniel

38 years

I would like to try this

Finishing our song. We've had several very productive rehearsals about how it should start.

My guilty pleasure

Judging a café by its menu font. I know. The font isn't making the coffee.

My superpower

Green Lantern with a pencil. I can make almost anything Nora imagines appear on paper. She still sends it back with notes.

and their parents

Julia

34 years

I would like to try this

Actually entering the 10K. I've visited the registration page enough times to qualify for a loyalty discount.

My guilty pleasure

Saving photos of immaculate craft corners. I'm very critical of that sort of thing. I have a whole folder.

My superpower

Spider-sense for hidden effort. I can spot the "five-minute activity" that needs forty minutes of preparation before I've finished reading the caption.

and their parents

Tobias

41 years

I would like to try this

A mountain hike with a friend. We might even reach the mountain. With the children, we've been doing very thorough research on the first playground on the way.

My guilty pleasure

Watching repair videos while the lamp I dismantled a month ago sits beside me. We're both learning a lot.

My superpower

Iron Man with a drawer of spare screws. I can work out why almost anything is broken. Putting it back together is sometimes the sequel.

and their parents

Sabine

37 years

I would like to try this

Finishing my skirt before someone brings me another torn bag. I'd like to wear something I've sewn, rather than carry groceries in it.

My guilty pleasure

The expensive coffee. I'll compare prices on washing powder. The beans and I have an understanding.

My superpower

Sewrina, the woman with a sewing machine. Show me a bag everyone's given up on. It'll be carrying potatoes by teatime.

Tone and voice

Our language should give people room to decide, and occasionally something to smile at. The combination is the voice. No individual word, joke, or sentence pattern has to appear in every message.

✓ Notice before interpreting

Start with the detail the reader supplied, or an explicitly illustrative everyday scene. A missing mitten is more useful than a diagnosis of modern parenthood. In replies, acknowledge what happened; do not infer an entire emotional state from one sentence.

A parent says the same setup step failed twice. No cause has been established.

~~Wir wissen genau, wie frustrierend dein chaotischer Familienalltag ist.~~

Die Einrichtung ist zweimal an derselben Stelle abgebrochen. Welche Meldung erscheint dort?

✓ Put the useful bit first

Give the answer before the atmosphere. For instructions, name the action and object. For a choice, show the relevant difference. For an article, state what question it will answer. Short is useful only when it remains clear.

A card set has six cards that users can arrange freely and needs no app.

~~Entdecke eine innovative Lösung, die Familien auf ihrer einzigartigen Reise begleitet.~~

Sechs Karten, die ihr in eure Reihenfolge legt.
Mehr nicht.

Explain what is possible and let the reader decide whether it fits. A purchase, a new routine, or an interest in our advice is not proof of love. Avoid permission-giving language that makes the brand the judge of acceptable parenting.

A parent asks whether a new routine tool is necessary when their existing routine works.

~~Wer sein Kind wirklich fördern möchte, sollte jetzt den nächsten Schritt gehen.~~

Wenn euer Ablauf für euch passt, müsst ihr nichts daran ändern.

✓ Leave the steering with the family

✓ Make knowledge inspectable

Replace prestige language with an explanation the reader can examine. Say what a product does, what the design is intended to support, and what has actually been studied. Expertise should make a question easier to judge.

Cards display the steps in a routine; no efficacy study has been supplied.

~~Wissenschaftlich bewiesen:~~

Die Karten zeigen die einzelnen Schritte.
Ob sie euren Alltag erleichtern, probiert ihr selbst

Use a small, recognizable discrepancy: the plan is ready, the shoe is missing. Keep the observation proportionate. The reader can recognize it without being asked to laugh at a child or partner.

illustrative social caption, not a customer reply

~~Kleine Tyrannen, große Dramen~~ 😂

Describe the action rather than declaring the child advanced, compliant, or exceptional. Celebrate a discovery without turning it into a milestone competition. The child remains a person with their own interest in the activity.

A child has chosen the order of three pictures.

~~Wow, du bist schon viel weiter als andere Kinder!~~

Du hast eine Reihenfolge für dich gefunden, welches Bild zuerst kommt, sehr gut!

too little contrast

using logo colors as background

really have to look closely here

I will hunt you down for a combination of two logo types

Typically the white logo is used on pictures and colorful background.
The colored logo is used on white or subtle colors.
And the black is the counter part to the white logo.

it’s simple

~~Show the product~~
~~on it’s own~~

Communicate through scenery and situations

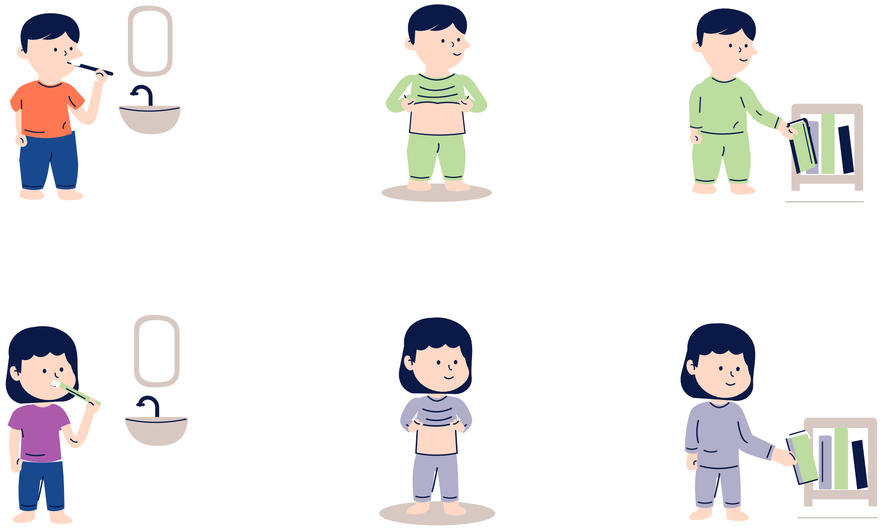
enhance the imagery

Use illustration to suggest what a child might imagine, notice, try, or turn an everyday object into. Start with the moment in the photograph and the message of the brief. An imaginary pair of birds escape the book or a few lines can suggest movement around an object already being held.

illustrations for products



Next to enhancing imagery, illustrations help us to communicate within our products to provide visual cues. The illustrations follow the colors and style of the product and it’s intention.

our kind of emojis

Our icons follow a simplistic hand-drawn style. The collection currently contains 63 icons in three colors. Arrows and chevrons may be rotated to fit their direction to their intended purpose.

Brand foundation

selba creates simple, playful tools that give children room to explore, try, and do more themselves in everyday family life.

This is the starting point for anyone making products, designs, copy, or decisions for selba, including agents. It defines the brand's enduring intent and application principles. Detailed execution belongs in the linked guidelines and assets.

Last update: 30 October 2026 Owner: Max Pinkert, max@selbaaaa.com v1.1: DACH audience, holistic family profiles, and research provenance

Navigate: Core · Audiences · Positioning · Values · Expression · Evidence · References · Review

Using this foundation

- Read this file first, then the audience and channel guidance relevant to the task.
- This file governs brand intent, promises, and boundaries. Specialist guidelines define execution; asset files hold exact visual resources and values. Product specifications govern factual details, which brand language must not override. Examples illustrate rules and do not override them.
- Direct instructions set requirements. Prefer marks a default that can adapt to the context. Example marks an illustration, not a product fact or testimonial.
- If guidance conflicts, apply this foundation to the brand decision and flag the conflicting passage for correction. If a required fact, asset, or rule is missing, name the gap. Continue with supported work; label exploratory choices as proposals rather than established brand standards.

Brand core

Essence

We care. We make room for “I can do it myself.”

Care means taking children's attempts seriously and respecting the realities of family life. The child's own discovery is the moment we want to make possible.

Purpose — why we exist

To give children more opportunities to experience their own capability, with support from the adults around them.
